Hylo Couple Win 1960 Baby Honors

Coasts Feted By Forestry Friends

LAC LA BICHE — A surprise house-warming party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Coast January 2. Some 40 Forestry personnel, their wives and other friends, some coming from as far as La Corey and Wandering River, completely surprised Mr. and Mrs. Coast.

An evening of dancing was enjoyed. A gift of money for an article of furniture for their new home was presented to the honored couple.

Douglas Wolansky Heads School Club

The Caslan School Club elected new officers for the coming year. Douglas Wolansky is president; Lloyd Wo'ansky, vice-president; Ronnie Gordey, secretary; and Melvin Cherniwchan, treasurer.

The club will sponsor a bingo at the Caslan school on Jan. 29.

Miss Lena Menard Wins First Prize

Winners of the Search for Talent Show held December 19 are: 1st, Miss Lena Menard, Plamondon; 2nd, Culypso Quartet, Lac La Biche; 3rd, Wally Tichanuk and Dennis Terrian, Lac La Biche.

Victoria Karpetz Queen Of Curling

WANDERING RIVER — Miss Victoria Karpetz was crowned Curling Queen on New Year's Eve in the Wandering River Hall. A New Year's dance was also held which was well attended.

GLAMOROUS CHAMPION, Aja Zanova, leads a group of Ice Ca'pets and Ice Cadets in "Cavalcade Of Hits", one of the 9 great productions in this year's fabulous 19th Edition of Ice Capades now showing at Edmonton Jan. 18-23.

Service Station Left Unlocked At New Year, Customer Serves Self

LAC LA BICHE—A rather unusual situation occurred at one of the service stations over the New Year's holiday. Dan Goldsmith, needing to replenish his supply of gas for a trip to Edmonton New Year's Day, stopped as usual at the service station he was in the habit of patronizing about 11 a.m. When no one came out to tend the pumps he went to the office and, the door being unlocked, walked in. No one was in sight so raising his voice he asked for service, but no answer. Taking a quick look around, he decided the place was empty.

He went to the phone and called the home of the proprietor but received no answer (the proprietor and his family being in the city for the New Year's holiday). Then Mr. Goldsmith called the home of a relative of the owner, who in turn called one of the employees. By this time neighbors near the service station, sensing something unusual, had also called one of the employees and the police. Soon an attendant and Const. Rizzoli arrived to discover that the service station had been left unlocked all night with a considerable sum of cash from the previous day's sales still intact in the till.

One motorist, earlier in the morning, had needed oil and, on finding no attendant about, helped himself to the oil and left the payment on the counter.

We doubt if this self-serve system will be adopted as the regular policy of the station.

Holiday And Resort Activities Studied By Chamber Of Commerce

The Lac la Biche chamber of commerce entered their 1960 business in a regular meeting, held Jan. 5 at the York Hotel dining room, exhibiting an aggressive interest. President Ed Garnett occupied the chair with 20 members present.

Four subjects received main consideration. The proof of a brochure to promote Lac la Biche's growing holiday and resort activities, representation to the provincial meeting of the Alberta chambers of commerce to take place in Calgary June 22, the long-proposed dam project to maintain the level of Lac la Biche and the subject of the southern highway.

The general format of the brochure was approved with a few minor inquiries to be made regarding paper particulars.

Regarding the provincial meeting of the Alberta chambers of commerce to take place at Calgary in June, a resolutions committee of Mike Hamar, M. Maccagno, L. Badry and W. Hamilton was appointed to study local interests and to bring suggested resolutions to the Lac la Biche chamber for their approval, if it seems advisable that any be submitted.

The dam project for Lac la Biche earlier referred to a study committee, received brief consideration as Mr. Maccagno gave an interim progress report. The committee's plan of action was to review again the combined effort of a controlled water level in Lac la Biche upon the fish and fowl population, and any flooding of arable land, private or crown, that might be involved.

Considerable interest was aroused regarding the southern highway project past Kikino, but action was deferred pending the receipt of information from the province regarding their projected plans for 1960.

President Ed Garnett concluded the agenda with a invitation to submit any special summer project plans requiring chamber attention early, to simplify dealing punctually with them.

Grassland Teams Defeat Dr. Swift

LAC LA BICHE—Both the boys and girls of the Dr. Swift School journeyed to Grassland to play basketball recently. The trip was made by school bus.

In the first game the much taller and more experienced Grassland girls completely outclassed the local girls and defeated them handily. Although the girls were well beaten on the score board, they played a much better game than they did on their first encounter.

In the second game the boys played a fast and entertaining brand of ball which was marred by some of the most fantastic "whistle tooting" this observer has ever seen.

Before the local boys could solve the magic of the referee they found themselves behind 15-4 but finished strongly to completely outplay Grassland in the second half in spite of the referee. The final score in the boys' game was 28-22 for Grassland. The local girls ended up in the short end of a 38 to 4 score.

The lineups were as follows: Boys — Forwards: Lozinski, Owcher, Franchuk, Cunningham, Hobay, Dobson, Stewart; Guards: Bereza, Meardi, Waschuk, Trefenanko. Girls — Forwards: Meardi, Gadzow, Dubrowny, Hamar, McCullough, Lobay, Karpetz; Guards: Lozinski, O. Mischuk, J. Mischuk Chomick, Sorochan.

Lac La Biche Merchants Have Gifts For New Son Of Mr. And Mrs. Guinard

By Martha Fraser

At St. Catherine's Hospital, Lac la Biche, Clifford Henry Guinard arrived on Jan. 5 at 11:05 p.m., to greet the citizens of this northeastern Alberta town. He took one look at the frozen expanse of ice covering the huge lake and decided he would wait a few years before he commenced skating — he felt more like snuggling into cozy blankets and a warm basinette which the cheery St. Catherine's Hospital had ready and waiting.

Clifford Henry is the second child of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Guinand of Hylo. He has one brother, Ted Leon, age three. His father is a farmer in the Hy'o district. Little New Year weighed 6 lbs. 2 oz., and is 20 inches long.

This baby is particularly fortunate in more ways than one, and of course, Lac la Biche feels very lucky too, in having such a beautiful baby come to town! Truly he has been a winner for there is a wide assortment of gifts awaiting to be called for. These gifts are with the compliments of Lac la Biche merchants. Father and mother are remembered too.

Charles Lebas has an offer for father to choose $5 worth of merchandise.

From George Homeniuk comes an invitation to come in and look over the large stock of major appliances, also farm machinery, and his offer is a $25 discount on the price of the purchase of any of these.

Lac la Biche Garage offers $2 worth of gas—free.

Lacland Sales and Service Co. Ltd., offered merchandise to the value of $5.

For Mother and Dad the Royal Cafe has a dinner for two—welcome news on a busy shopping day.

A darling little ny.on dress is the welcoming gift from Robinson's Store.

MacLeod's know that there are never too many towels around come bath time for babies—their gift is a pair of good sized towels.

Pruss's Pool Hall and Taxi knows how important warm blankets are to keep baby snug and warm, and a blanket is their gift.

The baby will get off to a good start too for Lac la Biche Creamery is giving 25 quarts of homogenized milk.

The Hudson's Bay Co. Ltd. have a case of Heinz baby food waiting to be called for.

Patry's Bakery planned their present ready ahead of time—theirs is a New Year's cake.

An ever welcome and useful gift is that of Stewart's Rexall Drugs for they are giving a brush and comb set.

The Michael Hamar Super Market believes in having supplies on hand and to prove that point they are giving two cases of Gerber's baby food.

The Aurora Theatre will honor the family with two free tickets a month for one year to their theatre—or 24 in all.

Lac la Biche Electric are duplicating last year's gift to the New Year's baby with two children's records.

Another dainty nylon dress—this is the gift of Lac la Biche Mercantile.

What an exciting day the baby will have when he makes the rounds to collect all these valuable prizes. Of course Dad and Mom too, will want to continue their patronage to these merchants in the years ahead.

Lac la Biche, baby, and merchants, it surely has been an exciting baby derby. Congratulations to the winner and a hearty vote of thanks to the merchants.

All the best not only in the New Year, but in all the years to follow.

THE Homemaker

By BERTHA M. McCUTCHEON

Keep these points in mind when doing your shopping.

Design In Everyday Living

There are two types of design—structural and decorative.

B. McCutcheon

Structural design is the design made by the size, form, color and texture of an object, whether it be the object itself, in space, or a drawing of that object worked out on paper. It is the basic form or structure without anything else.

Decorative design is the surface enrichment of a structural design. Any lines, colors, or materials that have been applied to a structural design for the purpose of adding a richer quality to it, make up its decorative design.

Structural design is far more important than decorative design because it is essential to every object, while decoration is "luxury of design".

What Are The Requirements Of Good "Structural Design"?

If an object is intended for use, the requirements of its structural design are fourfold:

1. That, in addition to being beautiful, the object be suited to its purpose.
2. That it be simple.
3. That it be well proportioned.
4. That it be suited to the material of which it is made and to the processes which will be followed in making it.

Let us take an example of good structural design — pottery bowls. Here the forms, colors and textures of the pottery should be so beautiful that one does not feel the need for decoration.

Poor structural design may be found in a vase which has a very narrow base and a broad top which makes it appear unbalanced and unstable.

The most significant phrase in the art world today is "form follows function". In other words "form and function are one". When selecting or making any article be sure that its form is suited to its purpose. Embroidered dish towels, pot holders or fly swatters decorated with wool flowers are definitely unsuited to their purpose. Those who have an appreciate of "fitness to purpose" realize that very simple decoration if any would be suitable to objects like the above as they are planned for humble use.

What Is Good Decorative Design?

Decorative design is design which has been applied to the surface to enhance the article. It adds to the appearance, not to use—like icing on a cake. One must be very careful not to let design hide the function of the article. Many of us tend to "over-decorate". Simplicity and moderation can be very effective, especially in these busy times when most women would like to have beauty without too much work involved.

Decorative design should fulfill all of the following considerations:

1. The decoration should be used in moderation.
2. The decoration should be placed at structural points, and it should strengthen the shape of the object.
3. There should be enough background space to give an effect of simplicity dignity to the design.
4. Surface patterns should cover the surface quietly.
5. The background shapes should be as carefully studied and as beautiful as the patterns placed against them.
6. The decoration should be suitable for the material and for the service it must give.

Ice Capades Features World's Finest Skaters Here Next Week

The colorful, dramatic, and varied acts of the 19th edition of Ice Capades, coming to the Edmonton Gardens January 18 to 23, has been planned to please all age groups. This year John H. Harris has added four great operatic productions . . . Faust, Samson & Delilah, Pagliacci, and La Boheme for a blending of the lovely old with the original new. Glittering costuming and scenery, daring choregraphy by Eugene Loring and an adaption of the world's finest music, permits this unique staging for "Operama" . . . on ice.

Walt Disney's Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs tops the list for children:. Ice Capades 19th edition uses the same fascinating cast of characters as in the film version of Snow White . . . The Seven Dwarfs, the Witch, Prince Charming . . . but has added even more fantasy for the ice performance . . . Dancing Trees and plastic Pink Elephants . . . and a beautiful plastic castle that grows before your very eyes.

In the world of ballet Ice Capades offers "Les Sylphides" performed by the Ice Capets and Ice Cadets, famed skating precisionists and featuring the ballet-adagio team, the Emanuels.

Popular music bring its finest songs to the front in the "Cavalcade of Hits" . . . the golden medley consisting of fifty years of the worlds' most popular tunes. This production stars world's champion, Aja Zanova and German national champion Peter Voss, plus the talented Shirley Linde, Alan Konrad and the new skating star, Helga Neff. Nearly every star in the show performs to some of the greatest music ever written.

On of the finest precision numbers of the 19th Edition of Ice Capades is the colorful production by Rosemarie Stewart and Bob Dench . . . Anchors Asway. Intricate patterns of precision skating are formed by the Ice Ca'Pets and Ice Cadets as these "nautical" skaters bring a pert and saucy atmosphere to the ice with their seemingly effortless ease in doing their routines.

The show ends with a real punch . . . a Salute to the Black Watch, which tops them all. The famed Dagenham Girl Pipers brought from Scotland especially for this number, pipe and dance as they do in their native land while performing the famous sword and reel dance. They are accompanied by the Ice Capets and Ice Cadets dressed in magnificent plaids with kilts swinging and shawls fleeting from their shoulders while they swing into a maze of intricate and precise skating routines.

This year's colorful and ambitious program is unexcelled. "Nothing is spared" Harris said, "either in expense, imagination or just plain hard work by everyone to turn out a superior show full of variety for all." Ice Capades will be in Edmonton at the Gardens for a performance nightly January 18 to 22 at 8:30 p.m. with three performances on the final day, January 23, 1:30 p.m., 5:30 p.m. and 9:00 p.m.

Ottawa Report

By Anthony J. Wright

It was not long ago that the main worry of economists here was Canada's trade deficit. We got the wind up if we had a minus "balance on merchandise trade." But now a less evident but more dangerous deficit is making the experts fret. Every year now we have a large deficit on "non-merchandise transactions".

Anthony Wright

These dealings do not involve the buying or selling of goods but cover every other way Canada has of borrowing from or spending money in other countries. For example non-merchandise transactions would include payments to NATO, the United Nations, the Colombo Plan or a Commonwealth Scholarship Plan, the cash that goes out on freight and shipping, money sent to relatives by immigrants, inheritances, money Canadians spend in Florida, on the Cote D'Azur, in Minneapolis, Seatle, New York or Ogdensburg every year.

But the most worrying chunk of this annual debt is the bit made up of interest and dividend payments to foreigners. The massive drafts of investment money that have flooded into Canada since the war and sustained our "boom" are now taking their toll. Foreigners want their interest and dividends as surely as the loan company wants its cut and the insurance firm its mortgage payment.

A trade deficit you can do something about . . . e.g. you can stop importing so much. But this other kind of deficit is built-in and recurring like a mortgage round the neck of a householder. What worries Ottawa is that since 1956 the trade debt has been less every year and has taken a smaller share of the total debt we owe others but the non-trade deficit has got larger. In 1958 it hit $915 millions out of a total external debt of $1,085 millions. In other words nine-tenths of all that we owed to other countries on a year's dealings was made up of built-in hard-to-reduce debts. One hundred million dollars of that debt was in direct royalty or design fees and other payments from Canadian firms to their foreign parents. Enough to buy us a few fighter planes!

All this would not matter so much if we were sure foreign investment were going to continue to flood in. But we are not. Europe is already a strong lure for American capital.

Footnote:- Preliminary estimates show that of the 1959 total external debt of approximately $1,400 millions some $1,085 millions was made up of non-trade deficit.

* * *

A Brighter Side? There is a brighter aspect of all this viz: if investment from without slackened off the phoney value of our dollar would drop to nearer par with the U.S. dollar. This would help all our exports, including those of grain, and tend to curb our imports. And a second bright facet is this:- We know Canada must have what it takes otherwise investment money would be shut off tomororw. The only wealth we have not got is people to process our natural wealth and eat our magnificent grain.

* * *

Gas Exports:- Stock market experts believe that the National Energy Board will, after much argument before it here, grant the export licences asked for by natural gas pipeline companies. They also believe that under the gentle pressure of the Borden Commission report the big oil companies will tend to import less from Venezuela etc. and use more Canadian crude. These developments will ginger up the economy of Alberta and, in some measure, Saskatchewan.

Mrs. Diesel Visits Father in Illinois

Mrs. L. J. Diesel of Owl River has just returned from visiting her father and brothers in the United States. Her father, Tola Shope, was recently honored by an article in his home paper "The Times" of Sand Springs, a suburb of Tulsa, Okla.

Tola Shope, Sand Springs first RFD carrier, was born on a farm 20 miles from Bloomington, Illinois, 92 years ago last July 18, the oldest of eight children. Four of the children still live. His father was a farmer. In his 24th year he was married to a neighboring girl, Miss Stella Haney.

The family moved to Oklahoma in 1912, living on a rented farm near Pumpkin Center. He later leased from an Indian the farm on the Coyote Trail Southwest of Sand Springs, where he is now living with his son Paul. Walter Holmes purchased the farm and later sold it to Mr. Shope. Three of the Shope children are living: Paul on the home farm; Ransom lives in Stephens county; while Gladys, Mrs. Diesel, lives in Canada. There are 11 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren. Five of his grandchildren live in Alberta. Raymond Henry, Louis Tola, Clyde, Marion and Bertha Diesel, now Mrs. Wm. Sawchuk, all live within a few miles of Lac la Biche and Robert Diesel and family live at McMurray. Mr. Shope also has 10 great-grandchildren living in Alberta.

Mr. Shope spends several weeks each year at the home of his oldest son, Ransom, in Southwest Oklahoma. Before their recent deaths he used to spend several months a year visiting his sons William and Clyde in southern Texas.

For his 92 years he appears in splendid health. He is of the Free Will Baptist faith, a good man, a kindly man, and has many friends who join in hoping that many happy days lie ahead of him.

Venice

Mrs. Mike Torresan has left to join Mr. Torresan in Drayton Valley where he is employed.

Jo Ann Goacobbo has left for Quebec where she will train in the Royal Canadian Airforce.

Recent visitors from Edmonton at the home of their parents were Lydia Macor and Vallee Torresan.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Nordin and children Aargarite and Ricky from Edmonton were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Rowland.

Bayview

Mr. and Mrs. Deventy were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albin Stupak.

The carollers from Grassland were singing carols from house to house in this district.

L. Brockage spent a few days in Edmonton with his nephew and family.

Miss Julianne Luc has returned home after a two week holiday in Edmonton.

Miss Helen Mischuk was home for New Year's Day.

What Youngsters Think

Parenthood Without Hokum

By Howard Whitman

PART 7

Punishment Can Be Constructive

How about listening to the youngsters themselves? In investigating child-care and particularly the business of discipline and punishment, the one at the receiving end ought to have their chance in the witness box.

At the Baton Rouge Junior High School, in Louisiana, I met with five youngsters — Diana, 13; Melba, 13; Rosemary, 11; Harry, 13, and Kirk 14 — and listened while they talked. Here are a few excerpts from the dialogue:

Rosemary — Well, children should have freedom, but I don't think to run around at all hours.

Diana—I'd like the family to be sort of a club. You know, democratic, so that everybody had an equal voice.

Howard Whitman

Harry—Not me, I don't think they should have the same voice. The parents know much more. All I want is for them to understand how the child feels.

Kirk — I think what a child needs is strong parents.

Diana — Well, I know another girl, she's 13, and she tells her parents off and they take it. I don't like that.

Melba—I'd rather have my parents lead me and correct me. I think a good idea is to have flexible rules—but not too flexible. I mean we want to know what we can do and what we can't do. Even if we break a rule we want to know we broke it. Otherwise, when parents say, 'You should have known better' how are we going to know?

Harry—I think when you do something wrong there should be some punishment, but not too much.

Kirk—Oh, I don't think even if a father uses the old razor-strap, it's not going to hurt anybody.

Diana—But won't it make the child afraid of the parent?

Kirk—It'll just make him not do it again.

Diana—Wouldn't it make him resent his parents?

Kirk—Maybe for a short time. He might say, 'I'll never love them anymore'—but after a couple of hours, it's okay.

Melba—I think it makes you understand what you've done wrong. And you know what your parents do is for your own good.

GETTING AWAY WITH IT

Harry—If a child isn't punished, pretty soon he begins to say, 'I can get away with anything.' I know a kid who burned up the neighbor's newspaper on the front porch and sliced the screen door with a knife. He's got to know that that isn't play.

I interrupted to ask a question—"Suppose the parents didn't believe in punishment at all?"

Harry—I guess they could raise their children all right. But I don't know how they're going to turn out.

Kirk—All I can say is, if we hadn't had any we'd all be little gangsters.

These children, and any others you care to talk with, seem in their spontaneous feelings to reflect a number of the insights which the professionals in child-care are taking hold of today. After two decades of laissez-faire, when discipline was regarded as a naughty word and punishment as "medieval" and "sadistic," the leaders of sociology and psychology today are following a different course.

KIDS NEED DISCIPLINE

They recognize (as children have all along) that youngsters have a need for discipline and that even that nasty word "punishment" can have a constructive, beneficial meaning.

Today punishment is not seen as vengeance; it is an instrument of teaching. Dr. Gunnar Dybwad, Director of the Child Study Association of America, summarized the new approach as follows:

"In recent years we have been speaking of punishment only as something to be avoided. We have been afraid of the very word because of a prejudice against it. No one has written of punishment in a positive way—one of our troubles is that people have been afraid even to pronounce the word 'punishment.'

"But now we will use the word 'punish' and will not be afraid of it. For we will see that punishment can be constructive."

In this, the social sciences are at last catching up with the Bible. Without scientific terminology, with neither statistics nor surveys, the Book of Proverbs (13:24) simply states, ". . . he that loveth (his son) chasteneth him betimes."

A HELPFUL PURPOSE

It is significant that the word "chasten" is employed here for this means: "to correct by punishment; to purify by freeing from faults." It is thus clear that the Bible from earliest times viewed punishment as constructive, its purpose not vengeful but helpful, designed to free the child from faults and better to prepare him for a happy life.

The hot stove is an example of constructive punishment. If you touch it, it burns you. Thus you learn at an early age not to touch a hot stove. The punishment is part of the act itself—and you save yourself a lot of burned fingers.

If parents are to use punishment constructively for their children's good, Dr. Dybwad suggests five guide points:

1. Punishment should have a time relationship to the wrongful act. If a 14-year-old girl comes home late from a dance, the parent can impose the punishment of staying home from the next dance. But with a three-year-old, there can be no such time lapse. If he is punished an hour after the wrongful act he may already miss the connection between it and the punishment. Thus the educational value is lost.

RELATED PUNISHMENT

2. A subject relationship makes punishment more constructive. If a child has messed up his sister's room, a logical punishment is to clean it up. If a child has broken a window, not by accident but wrongfully, a related punishment might be to do enough chores to earn money to pay for it.

Even spanking may have a subject relationship. If a child's misbehavior has taken the form of physical violence—such as beating up his little brother—then the physical force of a spanking might well meet the time-honored requirement of letting the punishment fit the crime.

3. The dignity of the child should be preserved. No matter what form a punishment may take, it always must hinge upon the fact that one continues to love the child as much as ever. It is the wrong-doing which is not loved. And the child must understand this.

4. The parent-child relationship must remain undamaged. Naturally, no child is going to like punishment any more than the parent likes administering it. But if the parent can help his child to see that punishment is part of the duty of parenthood, that, in effect, "I punish you because I love you" then the child will feel neither rejected nor unworthy because of it. He will accept punishment as "what's coming to him" and will recognize that his parents administer it out of loyalty.

NO THREATS

5. If punishment is necessary, then punish—but don't perpetually threaten to do so. The constant threat of punishment makes a child unsure of just where he stands. A punishment quickly and decisively administered does far more good than the over-worked line, "Johnny, if you do that again, I swear I'm going to—".

In the non-punishment era we went overboard in letting children express or "act out" whatever they wanted to; we didn't want them to be "repressed." But we have been surprised — and shocked — to see that some of the acting out is worse than the repression.

Today a healthy balance is being sought. At the Children's Village, a school for problem youngsters at Dobbs Ferry, New York, a staff member stated, "We are moving from indulgent permissiveness to benevolent firmness."

- (A) seismographic recording equipment and all appurtenances thereto,
- (B) conductor cables and cable reels, geophones, amplifiers and cameras,
- (C) explosive and detonating equipment,
- (D) drilling units and all the component parts and appurtenances thereof, and

- (A) vehicles licensed under The Vehicles and Highway Traffic Act, or The Public Service Vehicles Act, exclusive of mounted equipment on such vehicles, and
- (B) equipment, other than vehicle mounted equipment, used to drill a gas or oil well;

(e) "municipality" means a town, village, municipal district, county, improvement district, special area, metis improvement district or forest reserve;

(f) "owner" includes a person renting mobile equipment or having the exclusive use thereof under a rental agreement or otherwise;

NOTE: Mobile Equipment having an original list price of less than $2,000 does not require a license under this Act.
